A Festival Choir and Orchestra, Two Festivals and a unique temporary truce commemorated

The Barts Academic Festival Choir and Orchestra will be giving their Summer Concert on Monday 16th July in the Great Hall of St Bartholomew's Hospital. This promises to be an interesting concert since they will be performing two works perhaps not that frequently heard. First there is Dvořák's 5th Symphony written in the summer of 1875, when he was 34, and receiving its first performance four years later. Dvořák revised the work in 1887. Its style is pastoral, similar to Symphony No 6. An unusual musicological fact is that for a number of years the famous 'New World' Symphony No 9 was referred to as Symphony No 5 because it was the last of the five symphonies published during the composer's lifetime. The one we now refer to as No 5 was given the number 3. Apparently the first four symphonies were not uncovered until after Dvořák's death. As if this was confusing enough there is the additional fact that the current Symphony No 5 was given the opus number 76 by the publisher, whereas Dvořák marked the autograph score as Opus 24. Readers should rest assured that the listing in this edition of City Events at the date Monday 16 July gives the correct information. The other piece to be performed in the concert is Puccini's Messa di Gloria which, interestingly, he composed as his graduation exercise. It was first performed in 1880 when it was apparently well-received. However, Puccini did not publish the full manuscript, filing it away and thus it was not heard again in his lifetime. The work was eventually published in 1951 and performed in 1952, since when it has become a firmly established part of the choral repertoire. Strictly speaking, the piece is a full Mass, not a true Messa di Gloria (which contains only the Kyrie and Gloria and omits the Credo, Sanctus, Benedictus and Agnus Dei). The concert promises to be an evening of glorious music and the profits from the evening will all go to that most worthwhile of causes — the Barts Cancer Unit.

Two well-established customary annual festivals will be taking place. First there will be the 23rd St Anne's Bach Festival at St Mary at Hill during July. We are promised a feast of baroque music with a focus on the timeless genius of Johann Sebastian Bach combined with a nod to François Couperin in his 350th year and other composers of the era. The opening concert of the Festival will take place on Friday 6th July. Then in August we have the St Lawrence Jewry Summer Music Festival in the first two weeks of August. The theme this year will be "Around the World in Ten Days: from East to West, from North to South". The opening concert takes place on Monday 6th August, the theoretical geographical location being China, Japan and (via a somewhat lengthy trans-globe leap) Hungary. The great continents are each 'visited' day by day (ten concerts in all) culminating in a concert devoted to classical and folk music from South Africa, Guinea and Nigeria. A particularly intriguing concert is entitled 'Guildhall Down Under' on Friday 10th August, when young musicians from the Guildhall School of Music will perform (predictably from the title) works by Australian composers. This occasion will include a world premiere of a work by Emma Gregan, an up-and-coming horn player and composer based currently in Adelaide after several years in Brisbane.

Once again organ recitals feature significantly - 35 in all. Particular pieces that catch the eye are "Concert variations on 'The Star-spangled banner' " to be played by Catherine Ennis at St Lawrence Jewry on Tuesday 3rd July; 'Alleluys' composed by the prestigious organist Simon Preston, to be played by Benjamin Newlove at St Michael Cornhill on Monday 9th July; the Clog Dance from the ballet 'La fille mal gardée', played by Catherine Ennis at St Lawrence Jewry on Tuesday 31 July; and finally, but certainly by no means least, the final concert at Temple Church on Thursday 5th July of the Greg Morris series, in which he has performed J S Bach's complete works for organ.

It is particularly pleasing to note the increasing number of musical events taking place at St Sepulchre without Newgate. The concert taking place there on Saturday 7th July, to be given by the London Forest Choir and a visiting choir from Strasbourg, Maîtrise de l'Opéra National du Rhin, features a particularly poignant work, 'The Christmas Truce', composed by Jonathan Rathbone, conductor of the London Forest Choir, with words by Graeme Curry and featuring poems by the war poet Edward Thomas. This work will focus on the unique pause in hostilities on the Front Line at Christmas 1914 when troops from the opposing sides met in no man's land, to mingle and exchange food and souvenirs. A game of impromptu football was even played. This concert promises to be special bearing in mind the ongoing centenary commemoration of the Great War.

One hesitates to venture into hyperbole but your editor feels justified in labelling this double edition of City Events a bumper one with an amazing variety of musical performances listed and to be enjoyed. We now take a month off. The next edition will cover September and we hope our readers will have an enjoyable and musically rewarding summer
