Two Festivals and a Project

This month sees the launching of a new London Festival – Summer Music in City Churches. In the festival the aim is to present beautiful music chosen for its underlying theme and context. The theme for this year's inaugural festival marking 100 years since 1918 will be 'Swords and Ploughshares' with music recalling pre-Great War peace, the horror of war itself, and its legacy. Concerts will feature nostalgic reminiscence of a pastoral age irrevocably devastated by the outbreak of war, evocative settings of poetry by WWI poets and music written in tribute to those who fell in the Great War. Each concert will take place in a City church, the venues being St Giles Cripplegate on Thursday 21 June — the Opening Concert, Wednesday 22 June and Friday 29 June; St Mary le Bow on Friday 22 June, St Stephen Walbrook on Monday 25 June and Thursday 28 June and St Bartholomew the Great on Saturday 23 June. One concert is particularly noteworthy and that will be a Myra Hess tribute lunchtime recital re-creating the opening recital of Dame Myra's legendary National Gallery concerts in the Second World War. The soloist will be Adrian Brendle at St Giles Cripplegate on Wednesday 27 June. All of the concerts in the Festival are listed in the following pages. Full information concerning the Festival is to be found at: www.SummerMusicCityChurches.com

As always organ recitals abound in the City churches and June there will be no less than 32. In three of them special compositions for the Orgelbüchlein Project can be heard. The Project started in February 2013 and is a major international composition project to complete J S Bach's Orgelbüchlein. Bach intended this to be a compendium of chorales for the whole church year. Beginning in about 1713 he wrote out the title of each of the 164 Chorales he wished to include. However, only 46 were completed by him (with a sketch for one other) so there are 118 'ghost' chorales awaiting completion. The task for composers contributing to the Orgelbüchlein Project is this: if Bach were alive today, how might he go about writing a short chorale prelude in the Orgelbüchlein style? However, style is entirely open. Many of the 'schools' of contemporary composition are represented; minimalism, 'spirituality', new complexity, modernism, serialism, jazz, post-colonialisms, together with a range of styles from periods since Bach's death. Many composers and organists have contributed and the Project is entering its final phase, with about 15 commissions remaining. Two compositions are featured in the organ recital given by Samuel Bristow at St Bride Fleet Street on Friday 29 June. Most interestingly one of the contributions in that recital is by Stephen Hough, the renowned international concert pianist. Another will be played by William Whitehead at St Michael Cornhill on Monday 11 June. At St Lawrence Jewry on Tuesday 12 June Portugal's leading organist João Vaz will play his contribution to the Project and importantly this will be the world premiere of the piece. More information about the Orgelbüchlein Project can be found at: www.orgelbuchlein.co.uk

Finally mention must be made of another innovative concert series – Spitalfields Music in the City. The venues are not City churches and thus are not listed in City Events but the three concerts will be held in the City. The venues will be Livery Halls and the concerts in June, July and September will celebrate the centenary of women's suffrage, featuring all-female artists performing works by women composers through the ages. Full information can be found at: www.spitalfieldsmusic.org.uk/season/performances-18

ART EXHIBITION

Suzanne Perlman
Catching the Ephemeral

at the Dutch Centre, Austin Friars

A student of Oskar Kokoschka in Salzburg and Sidney Gross in New York, 95-year-old artist Suzanne Perlman has carved her own distinctive career spanning seven decades and three continents. The exhibition title CATCHING THE EPHEMERAL refers to Perlman's express aim to capture the 'fleeting moment of insight' in her work

Opening times throughout June:

Monday to Friday: 1000 to 1600
Saturday and Sunday: 1000 to 1700

The exhibition will continue until Friday 31 August and is open to the public with exception of days when the Main Hall is booked for private events. Private curated tours can also be arranged.

Admission is free
More details may be found at:

Saturday 2 June

1900 All Hallows by the Tower

"Dear Chocolate Soldier"

In June 1916 a 6 year old girl watches her father wrap a packet of chocolate for the brave soldiers at the front. A thought strikes her: 'How will the soldier know it's from me?' Her father obligingly writes: 'From Little Joan, Whiterock, Cornwall'. Six weeks later a letter arrives for Little Joan, the first of many from Bombardier Edwin Hassall, still in the midst of the fighting at the Battle of the Somme. The story of the letters is told movingly and amusingly in this docudrama, written by our own Kate Glover (Price), in a cabaret style performance with poetry and popular songs from the period.

Tickets £12 (£10 concessions) available on the door
